Compromise

Compromise is a way to settle a disagreement. In a compromise, both people get some of what they want and agree to not get everything that they want. Another way to think of compromise is that instead of one person coming over to another's point of view, the two meet somewhere in the middle. Many conflicts can be settled using compromise.

DIRECTIONS: Write down a possible compromise for each situation.

1. A boy wants to stay out till midnight. His parents want him home by 10 p.m.
2. Alice wants a cheese pizza. Jerry wants pepperoni.
3. Mr. Miller wants to go out for dinner. Mrs. Miller wants to stay in.
4. Tina and her sister both want to read the same book.
5. Penny and her brother both want the last piece of cake.
6. Neither Joe nor Evan wants to walk the dog.
